About

Calming spent all their time building 'The Moon's Rest', a hotel-style build that was specifically for the Lunarian residents and those granted permission while visiting. They also built a moon fountain. While they weren't the most vocal member they did interact with a few people and tried to help out whenever anyone said they needed something. She often even avoided the group meetings of 'One good, one bad' as she found it stupid and never had any good or bad (Calming is sorry roommate, but also isn't).

History

Despite joining late and dying a few times, Calming eventually found a civilization and asked to stay. They were in the middle of moving onto the ground so it was the perfect time for them to help out. Having helped move supplies down to the new area, Calming went looking for something to do and was tasked with building an area for the bed. Having been told that it didn't matter what it looked like or even if it is good, Calming took it as a challenge and made 'The Moon's Rest'. A hotel-style build that took all except the last session to finish. Not only that but after hearing Wisping_Draft complain about not being able to walk through doors, Calming made sure the entire place was accessible for tall people. Calming is convinced they did something right, because for two or three sessions alot of tall people stood on their roof. While it inconvenienced the build process, Calming was happy to see people using their build!

When the different civilizations went to war, Calming stayed behind to build. Gentle_Radiant saw Calming and gave them a few farm jobs to help them improve their level, it worked. Afterwards, Calming returned to the grind, their lovely hotel was almost done. Having met so many nice people, Calming decided to award the four she talked to the most, Gentle_Radiant, Sunlit_Dust, and Wisping_Draft by surprising them with a bigger room on the top floor that was accompanied by a sitting area and roof access. After building, Calming decided to spruce up the area by adding a moon fountain and discovering a famous tree that Sun Tzu talked about. All in all, Calming considers their contribution to be limited but helpful.
