Shadowed_Jester

> I remember when you came to me with a friend of yours, and let me know of the water god's true intentions. You never cut ties with the water people, even after joining my nation. Your determination to bridge the gap between two groups that were so often at odds was an important factor that helped them change their ways for the better. Thank you, Peace Maker!

About

Shadowed_Jester was a neutral-aligned character, notable for having a supporting role in several major events throughout the Pantheon of Gods event. Having not directly been involved in major conflicts, Jester's most prominent role was their attempts at bridging the gap between former members of Rapture and the rest of the nations, despite denouncing their god and heavily disagreeing with their original mission to slay all gods.

History

SESSION 1-2

Jester spawned into the world surrounded by players in the acacia biome, swiftly gathering basic supplies before moving to the plains biome in the horizon where they meet Lulling_Sunset and Endless_Night, their first allies in the event.

Soon after establishing an allyship with Lulling_Sunset and Endless_Night, player Golden_Pearl joined the game not far from the three, offering to assist those new to the system and help them get used to the world around them. A temporary base was created in the center of a large lake nearby, where many others would later seek shelter, including one Aquatic_Stream.

While gathering supplies for the civilization, Jester came across a player named Blooming_Astral, who would become a notable ally until the end of the event.

The community of survivors appointed Golden_Pearl as their de-facto leader, with Aquatic_Stream becoming a close second-in-command, who declared that the community of people would follow the god of the ocean, Exiled_Abyss. Daily prayers became routine, the community grew from a small group of five to a faction of 20 by the time they relocated to what became the first ocean settlement; Rapture.

Jester, however, did not pray to the ocean god. During every prayer session with the followers of the ocean god, Jester would secretly pray to the Lord of the Celestial Flame, the God of Red Sun, Igneous_Dawn.
