“ That chicken is my son, NotMySon, I hate him but I guess he's here.

About

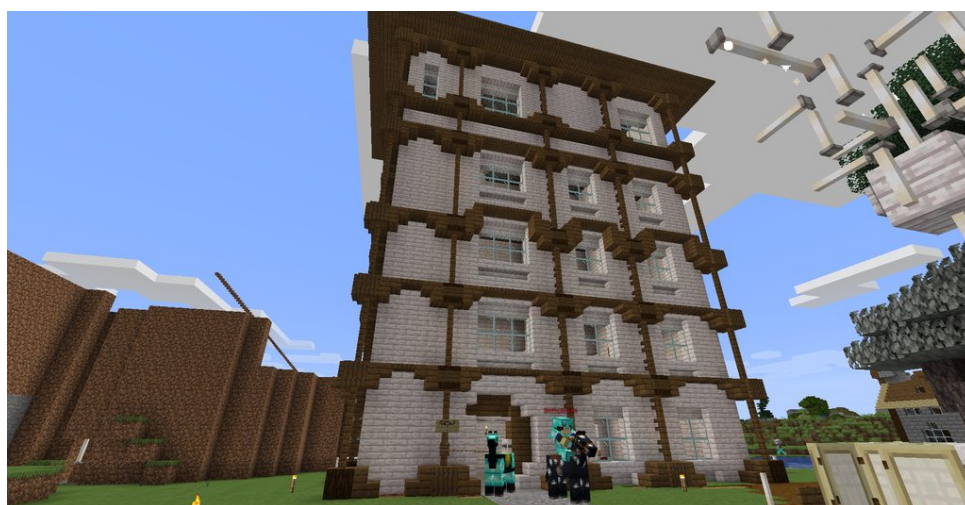

Calming spent all their time building 'The Moon's Rest', a hotel-style build that was specifically for the Lunarian residents and those granted permission while visiting. They also built a moon fountain. While they weren't the most vocal member they did interact with a few people and tried to help out whenever anyone said they needed something. She often even avoided the group meetings of 'One good, one bad' as she found it stupid and never had any good or bad (Calming is sorry roommate, but also isn't).

History

Despite joining late and dying a few times, Calming eventually found a civilization and asked to stay. They were in the middle of moving onto the ground so it was the perfect time for them to help out. Having helped move supplies down to the new area, Calming went looking for something to do and was tasked with building an area for the bed. Having been told that it didn't matter what it looked like or even if it is good, Calming took it as a challenge and made 'The Moon's Rest'. A hotel-style build that took all except the last session to finish. Not only that but after hearing Wisping_Draft complain about not being able to walk through doors, Calming made sure the entire place was accessible for tall people. Calming is convinced they did something right, because for two or three sessions alot of tall people stood on their roof. While it inconvenienced the build process, Calming was happy to see people using their build!

When the different civilizations went to war, Calming stayed behind to build. Gentle_Radiant saw Calming and gave them a few farm jobs to help them improve their level, it worked. Afterwards, Calming returned to the grind, their lovely hotel was almost done. Having met so many nice people, Calming decided to award the four she talked to the most, Gentle_Radiant, Sunlit_Dust, and Wisping_Draft by surprising them with a bigger room on the top floor that was accompanied by a sitting area and roof access. After building, Calming decided to spruce up the area by adding a moon fountain and discovering a famous tree that Sun Tzu talked about. All in all, Calming considers their contribution to be limited but helpful.

About

Member of Lunara.

History

Continue_Cycle joined Lunara/Moon civ in the first session and served as one of its miners. Kindled_Inferno, the other miner, died tragically mid-event which made Cycle the only miner* until the final session.

About

"Dark Follower of the Dark God Lunatik."

History

Fallen_Shade was a part of Golden_Turtle's void believer group from sessions 1-3. During this time the sun god attempted to convert the people to him but Fallen_Shade took a stance against him to the point of killing multiple holy animals and destroying a shrine. Fallen_Shade would eventually making the great pilgrimage to Lunaria in session 3. Due to being the only guardsman at the time, Fallen_Shade was given head general of Lunaria in session 4. During the sun curse of session 4 [1] Fallen_Shade took a stance of reassuring the citizens and praying to void God, Lunatik about ending said curse. When the curse ended after 5 ingame days, Fallen_Shade would sacrifice himself to Lunatik and be reborn as Sentinel of the void for showing remarkable faith to Lunatik. Later during session 5, Fallen_Shade would be knighted one of the co leaders of Lunaria by Wisping_Draft. In session 7, Fallen_Shade along with Wisping_Draft and Golden_Turtle would attend the diplomatic meeting establishing the Pantheon of Unity. In session 8, Fallen_Shade would participate in the battle against Rapture and would end up killing ocean sentinel Endless_Night and getting their trident and fire aspect sword as war spoils. Fallen_Shade would end up keeping their co leader status as general of Lunaria during the Lunarian reforms. [2] In Session 10, Fallen_Shade would double down on worshipping Lunatik when the great flood occurred while still encouraging people to pray to Lunatik. Fallen_Shade's participation would then wind down for the rest of the sessions until being chill in the last one.

Footnotes:

[1]: The sun curse was an anomaly during session 4 where the sun did not set for 5 in game days straight leaving everybody in Lunaria unable to heal.

[2]: The Lunarian reforms took place late Session 8 after the Battle of Rapture from Lunatik's anger of Golden_Turtle's leadership. Wisping_Draft replaced Golden_Turtle's place as leader and apostle. Alongside this, a new Co-leader Council was also established consisting of Fallen_Shade, Brilliant_Devil, Dreaded_Treasure, and Sunlit_Dust. Overall the reforms led to the replacement of the old Oligarchy to a new Councilship.

“ You need food? Anybody needs food? I'm delivering food.”

TRASH TALK WARNING (some premium-grade banter):

I had about 98 deaths per session but still managed to max Farmer and feed one of the most prominent civs in the server on pure caffeine. Half asleep, too many deaths to be called alive, and still more useful than some of y'all's entire economy. At this point, my respawn timer had better GDP than half this server. What were the rest of you doing, sightseeing?

About

Ashen_Hazel was a Lunarian farmer who has been a part of the group from the very first minute to the last session.

Due to the nature of Ashen_Hazel waking up to every session with barely any sleep and no coffee, he treated his experience with the full open enthusiasm and detachment of a dead-end job worker at 8AM on a Monday.

Later on, Ashen_Hazel noticed an exploit in the game which allowed him to continuously sacrifice to his god. Using this, Ashen_Hazel was able to rack up a record number of deaths at the expense of his own god. He won the most deaths award by a landslide, with 1567 deaths (could have stopped at 1500 because the gods are angry, but 67 is a very special number). Very sorry for I, the God of Void, for spamming your chat with this.

History

Ashen_Hazel ran into Sunlit_Dust, who was right next to the first Lunaria settlement, approximately 10 seconds right after spawn, and became a resident of Lunaria since.

“ 5 Hearts damage more and we wouldnt had a blacksmiths after session 4

About

Bro was lowk annoying tried to get smithist armor and just wanted to kill mine god

History

He joined session 2 as a thief than come across to a group called voids he thought he can settle here and find peace so he wrote his name(actual Ninjamuz name as accident) to a job board after that he started workin under Fallen_Shade to become a great guardsmen but he originally had one goal in his mind ascend to a Godhood he thought he needs easier goal at first so when he learned about the signs from blacksmiths he knew he had to get all 4 different of armor piece from different smiths around the world excluding Lunaria's blacksmith but than the lore decided that he saw a nightmare of Void god making he fell to a void when he woke up he werent at the civ and he had God Apple on his backpack. When he saw this he knew some gods were helping he to get his goal. And after he woke up he felt more powerful so he gone to a exploration there he met with the Mine civ and saw his first other god Mine God he knew he realised that he Mine God werent wasnt popular as he thought they had 4~ that they all were hungry and traded spider eye and sugar cane for the foods. After the trade The Mine god came to the civ he owned when True Ender saw Mine god he became a bloodlust monster ate his God Apple and started attacking Mine god. Mine god started running from him but Mine God were too slow to escape from the pearls True_Ender had. When True_Ender was about to put his last attacks to injured Mine God he fell from the top of Mine Civ building from a Mine Civ member and fell into his death. After his death True Ender never felt same and felt guilty that he didnt finish his job there, he met with wind civ to gain his chestplate from the Random_Diamond , traded a iron armor piece with another ender that they met on Water civ for the Helmet from the Light Civ, and finally he gained the leggings and the boots from the water civ blacksmiths he knew it werent right but it was too late to change he had to focus his Main goal more.

After each session pass he became much passive he were around Lunaria more. He couldnt become one of the leader of the Lunaria so he fighted mobs became stronger on his guardsmen job with the help of Fallen_Shade. At the time of gaining boots from water civ he saw a trident on someones hand he thought himself what could happen if i take one than after that he gained a new goal. He searched the water Civ so much stole so much but he couldnt find a trident. Time passed so much since the first visit that a war between Water God and the Lunaria Allies were about to happen, he knew he had to join because he wanted a action . When they were fighting with Fallen_Shade on the battlefield he saw that Fallen_Shade has a trident. He were forgot about his goal until that day than he started searching if Non-Lunaria members had a trident and found on old Water God Member Golden_Pearl, while they were on the new battlefield in under the water after the defeat of Water god. He saw a group of people attacking Golden_Pearl , he knew it was his chance to attack now he became bloodlust and started attacking too but the allies of lunaria were too strong and they noticed that he were attacking Golden_Pearl than they all started attacking True_Ender he had to escape from the hole they came from. Before he were about to be killed he found a excuse that saved he and went back to his civ. while on they were on the route of the Lunaria Golden_Pearl stopped he and he asked one question " Why You Attacked Me? " He didnt know what to say at that moment so he told the truth. Golden_Pearl were disappointed that he thought a good friend of he were jealous of his trident than they both went to their own Civilization and never talked about this.

After the failing of killing the Mine God , Gaining Trident he decided to Create a observatory that had window looking like Moon (btw funfact it was originally house plan) he worked several sessions and builded himself a Observatory. He lived happily ever after...

OR SO YOU THOUGHT! When he knew his last days were here he saw the Void God and became his sentinel once more after 13 sessions the time he last attacked mine god! He went to festival attack looking for a god to kill and he saw Fallen_Shade he recruited him and attacked Life God! He werent succesful but he were happy that he hasnt changed.
